CAMBRIDGE UNDERGRADUATES' ALPS THRILL

Broadcasting House, London, where the Empire programme are made up and relayed to Daventry.

THE KING'S XMAS MESSAGE

MAY BE PICKED UP IN HONGKONG AT ABOUT 11 P.M.

London, Dec. 23.
His Majesty's Christmas Day broadcast to the Empire will be relayed from Sandringham House to the Empire Broadcasting Station at Daventry at 3.35 p.m.
Sandringham Time.

It is interesting to note in this connection that all clocks at Sandringham House are kept permanently half an hour fast.
This innovation was introduced by King Edward and his order has never been rescinded. King Edward's object was to provide an hour of daylight for shooting parties. His Majesty's father was thus, says Reuter, really the first to introduce Summer Time in England.

B. B. C. REQUEST.

It is understood that the B.B.C. is circulating a questionnaire to listeners to the Empire short-wave service. The type of information which is desired, in order to make adjustments to the service, is shown in the following selection from the questions:

1. When do you receive the Empire Transmitter best?
- (a) At what period of the year.
- (b) At what time of the day in that period of the year?
2. (a) What transmitters other than the Empire Transmitter are receivable?
- (b) Are they received better than the Empire Transmitter?
- (c) What wavelengths do they use?
- (d) At what time of the day and year do you receive them best?
3. (a) Did you ever hear the old British Experimental Station G5W (Chelmsford)?
- (b) How does your standard of reception of the Empire Transmitter compare with it between 6 p.m. and midnight (your time)?
4. (a) Are you bothered by atmospherics?
- (b) When are they most troublesome?
- (c) Are they equally severe on all wavelengths under, say, 100 metres?

SUGGESTIONS SOUGHT.

5. Can you offer any suggestions for improvement in the Empire Service?
- (a) On programme considerations?
- (b) On technical methods, as, for example, the wavelengths to be used?
6. What types of programme do you consider come over best from a technical point of view?
- (Please reply purely on technical grounds without being influenced by the types of programme which you like.)
7. What types of programme interest you most?
- (Please reply purely on grounds of your own taste, but state if a favourite type of material does not come over well.)
8. (a) How much time have you for listening?
- (b) What are the most suitable hours (your time) for your own listening?

B.A.T. AND BERGMANN'S

SENSATIONAL ARRESTS AT DRESDEN

WHICH WAY DID MONEY GO?

Dresden, Dec. 23.
The acquisition by the B. A. T. of an interest in the well-known Continental firm of tobacco manufactures, Bergmann's, has led to a first-class sensation in Dresden.

The brothers who own the large cigarette firm bearing their name, Karl and Sigmund Bergmann, have been arrested.

It is learned that the charge relates to alleged illegal disposal of currency and it appears to have arisen from the reported acquisition of shares in the Bergmann concern a few days ago by the British-American Tobacco Company.

BROTHERS' DENIAL.

The brothers declare that the charge is ridiculous. They contend that far from disposing of currency, they actually brought it into the country.

The sum involved in the transaction is said to be in the region of from three to four million marks.

The name of Bergmann is known to every household in Dresden and their appearance in court attracted an enormous crowd to witness the proceedings.
After a brief preliminary hearing, the brothers were released on bail.—Reuter.

PEDIGREE FLAX EXPERIMENTS

SUCCESS ON ROYAL ESTATE

London, Dec. 23.
The experimental growing of pedigree flax on the King's San-dringham Estate, under the supervision of the Linen Research Association and the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research, is believed to have proved very successful.

A deputation from the Linen Research Association was received by the King and Queen at Buckingham Palace this week, and Their Majesties inspected a variety of linen goods manufactured from flax grown at Sandringham.

The newspapers suggest that large areas of the Royal Estate may be devoted to flax next year, as a lead to home production of this important raw material. Meantime research is continuing.—British Wireless.

THE ROUND TABLE CONFERENCE

FINAL SESSION TO BE HELD TO-DAY

London, Dec. 23.
As the result of the rapid progress achieved during the past few days, the tasks before the Indian Round Table Conference are now practically completed.

By this evening, the committee had finished their work of examining the various aspects of the complicated questions at issue and the reports of the committees had been noted by the Conference.

Late to-night, the Conference, which had had two sessions earlier in the day, was summoned to meet for a general discussion on the conclusions reached and tomorrow morning at the final session the third Indian Round Table Conference will be formally brought to an end.—British Wireless.

Mr. J. Fraser, of 13, Kent Road, Kowloon Tong, has reported to the police that his terrier dog bit Chung Bau, a delivery cooie of the British Aerated Water Co. The animal was taken to Ma Tau Kok for observation.

NEW ZEALAND AND WAR DEBTS

GENEROUS OFFER NOT ACCEPTED.

London, Dec. 23.
The New Zealand Minister of Finance, Mr. W. D.
Steward, stated to-day that the British Government, while expressing their warm appreciation of the generous feeling which prompted New Zealand's offer to resume responsibility for war debt payments, had not accepted the offer.—British Wireless.

DE VALERA'S CAMPAIGN

MORE ANTI-BRITISH TARIFF MOVES

ABOLITION OF PREFERENCE

Dublin, Dec. 23.
The Free State Government have issued a new tariff order, the effect of which is the withdrawal of the preference granted to certain British commodities.

Among the articles affected by the abolition of the preference are:

Boots and shoes,
Men's and boy's clothing.
Certain iron and steel articles.

The motor-car duty rate is reduced to that of the preference rate, which means that foreign cars will enter Ireland on the same basis as British vehicles.
Many articles constructed of iron and steel are exempted from duty under the new order, including such things as sewing, printing, hosiery, boot-making and agricultural machinery.

MR. DE VALERA'S.

Mr. de Valera's sole idea appears to be to make the Irish Free State more independent economically of British manufactures than it has been. The exemptions of machinery from duty payments are intended obviously, to encourage the development of new industrial activity in Ireland.—Reuter.

DOLLAR SLIGHTLY RISES

BUT UNDERTONE ON EASY SIDE

The Hongkong dollar rose 1/8th this morning to 1s. 3d. The market locally is very quiet, with the undertone slightly easier than yesterday.

In London, silver advanced a farthing spot and 3/16th forward, the rise being chiefly due to speculative covering and China buying. After the official fixing, the market ruled very quiet, with buyers satisfied.

There is no change in silver prices in New York. The cross-rate is 3.33 3/8, steady.

BATAVIA SUGAR SCHEME

REVISED FORM APPROVED

Batavia, Dec. 23.
The scheme for creating a central sugar-selling organisation, supervised by the Government, was approved in a considerably amended form at a special meeting of the People's Council.

The scheme embodies a provision for compulsory contributions by sugar sellers and sugar employees to a fund for the unemployed in the sugar industry.—Reuter.

SKI-ER FALLS INTO CREVASSE

RESCUED BY LIGHT BLUE CAPTAIN

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH

(Our Own Correspondent).

London, Dec. 23.

An unexpected thrill was provided for the members of the Cambridge University ski team practising near St.
Moritz to-day, when one of the party had an extremely narrow escape from death.

Wonderful presence of mind and courage on the part of the skipper of the team provided the thrilling incident with a happy ending.

The ski-ers were descending Diavolezza Glacier and were going at full pelt when F.A.
Jarvis, of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, worked too far off the track and suddenly disappeared into a crevasse.

CAPTAIN'S RESCUE.

C.S. Taylor, of Trinity College, the captain of the team, who happened to be slightly to the rear and witnessed the mishap, brought himself to a sudden stop in a flurry of snow and regardless of the danger, dashed to the rescue.

Jarvis, himself, by some miracle of Providence, had not been thrown to the bottom, but had been able to gain a grip on the wall of the crevasse from which he was dangling like a fly.

He was close enough to the top to be able to seize hold of one of Taylor's sticks and pull himself to safety.

TERRIBLE FATE LIKELY.

But for Taylor's prompt action, Jarvis would undoubtedly have fallen to the bottom of the crevasse and he would probably have perished of the bitter cold before he could have been drawn up.

XMAS PARTY AT KOWLOON

ENJOYABLE EVENT AT CLAREMONT

The Misses Ellis, of Claremont Hotel, Austin Road, Kowloon, gave an enjoyable children's Christmas party yesterday afternoon in the Hotel.

The dining room was tastefully decorated with streamers and lights and, at one end, a Christmas tree stood laden with presents and sweets. The children, most of whom were in fancy dress, after being photographed had tea and played several games, and, later, Father Christmas arrived and presented gifts to them.

Three hearty cheers were given for the Misses Ellis and their helpers and then Father Christmas (Mr. J. J. Cornhill) was escorted out by Mr. John Russell who acted as M.C.

Bags of sweets were distributed, after which the merry party broke up carrying with them happy memories of a glorious afternoon.

The death occurred at 27, Jordan Road this morning of Mrs. Libana Pellipia Danenberg, widow of the late Professor F. P. Danenberg, at the age of 68 years. The deceased lady, who had lived practically all her life in Hongkong, was well-known and highly respected. She leaves six daughters, with whom much sympathy will be felt. The funeral takes place today at 3 p.m. at St. Paul's.

A scene at Euston just before the final exodus, showing a double line of parcels for the North which extended the length of an entire platform.

LOCAL LAW BEING AMENDED.

The Gazette contains the draft of an Ordinance to amend further the

The Objects and Reasons state that Section 2 adds a new section 42B to the Code of Civil Procedure.
It corresponds with necessary adaptations (such as "Registrar" for "Senior Master" and "Taxing Process Server") with Order XI, Rule 13 of the Supreme Court in England. Section 42A of the Code, corresponding to Order II rules 9 and 10, applies only to service of process for foreign courts in countries with which no Civil Procedure Convention has been concluded.

Provision for cases where documents to be served emanate from a country with which there is such a Convention is made in England by Order XI, Rule 18. Conventions extended to Hongkong have been made between the United Kingdom, Austria, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, France, Germany, Norway, Spain, and Sweden.

Other Conventions which will probably be similarly extended have been made with Italy, Portugal and Poland.

In consequence it becomes necessary to make provision in the Code of Civil Procedure for such cases.

ARMED ROBBERIES ON MAINLAND

TWO EARLY THIS MORNING

Valuations amounting to $1,355 were stolen by a gang of four armed robbers who gained admission to the Tung Tak crockery shop, of 77, Ki Lung Street, Shamshui, during the early hours of this morning.

The inmates were aroused by the intruders shortly before five o'clock and after the robbers, who were armed with a revolver and three daggers, had bound and gagged the occupants, they ransacked the premises.

Eight men, armed with a chopper, committed a robbery at Shek Pik Chung Ha, in the Tai O District, shortly after 1 o'clock this morning and stole money and jewellery. According to a brief report received at Police Headquarters this morning, one of the inmates was wounded.

HONOUR FOR SIR WM. PEEL

HON. FELLOW OF QUEEN'S COLLEGE, CAMBRIDGE

The interesting announcement is made in the current issue

Excellency Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., Governor of Hongkong, has been elected an Honorary Fellow of Queens' College, Cambridge.

MILD XMAS AT HOME

LONDON SHOPS FULL TO OVERFLOWING

THE EXODUS FROM LONDON

London, Dec. 23.

All over the country, preparations for the celebrating of what promises to be an unusually mild Christmas are nearing completion.

The temperature in London for several days has been at the normal level for April and it is hoped that the fine spell will last over the week-end.

London streets present their usual aspect of bustle and the shops are crowded.

The holiday rush on the railways has begun and the Flying Scotsman, the Cornish Riviera Express and other long distance trains left London to-day in duplicate.

Two hundred extra trains are being run to-day and to-morrow on the London, Midland and Scottish line and 97 on the Southern.

Fifteen thousand seats have been booked on the Great Western trains, and sleeping car reservations on the night trains for Scotland are expected to equal last year's figure of 2,500.

Once again the growing popularity of air travel has set up a record. At Croydon, all available air liners are in service and those leaving to-day were full to capacity.

Unusually large numbers are this year spending their Christmas at sea on the numerous winter pleasure cruises arranged by the leading shipping firms.—British Wireless.

WINDING-UP PETITION DEFERRED

At the Supreme Court this morning, the Chief Justice (Sir Joseph Kemp) adjourned sine die the hearing of the winding-up petition of the Shanghai Company, Limited. The petition was presented to the Court on December 9th by Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Company Limited.

His Lordship, granting the adjournment said:—This petition has been advertised for hearing to-day and I have at once in order to call it on in public. But the petitioning creditors and the Company both wish the petition to be adjourned because a scheme of arrangement is in course of negotiation.

"FANCY DRESS."

Must be Striking in Effect.

The planning and making of a successful fancy dress is probably only a little less fun than the wearing of it. Anyhow, it appears that invitation cards for the nursery hearing the words "Fancy Dress" are a direct challenge to mothers to set wits to work.

A good carnival dress must be striking in its effect, no matter whether it is splendid, comic, or picturesque. Consequently, colour must be strong and every detail exaggerated. Gilded calico can look as well as brocade, and cotton plush may outshine velvet. Excellent use may be made of coloured oil-baize, towelling, sackings, book-muslin, teddy-bear cloth, and check gingham, whilst such various materials as mop-cotton, curtain rings, glass beads, luggage labels, toy balloons, and sheepskin door-mats have all played a part in achieving success for some small wearer of carnival costume.

The Comic Aspect Is Popular.

Any fancy dress that raises a good laugh by its design, or by the ideas suggested, is sure of success. Such costumes are, moreover, frequently both cheap and easy to improvise. The small boy may, for instance, make an amusing appearance as a policeman, and all he requires is tunic and trousers of navy serge, a helmet of cardboard and shiny black oil-baize, a truncheon, also baize covered, large white cotton gloves, and a whistle. Made up as a smart nurserymaid in short blue cotton dress, and starched cap and apron, he will carry a baby doll; if he wears his own boots and stockings they will provide an amusing contrast to the rest.

A large handkerchief of gold metal net with two sides bordered with gold sequins is a smart new note for evening.

"Washing Day" will suggest an easy make-up for a little girl. Her frock can be of red and white check gingham, and from the waist it may be fastened with a very thin clothes line hung at intervals with the smallest-sized clip pegs, and to each peg should be fastened a scrap of coloured rag or doll's garment. A cap of scarlet oil-baize decorated with pegs would serve as a head-dress.

The "Order of the Bath" will serve as a costume for either boy or girl. It should consist of a long-trousered suit of white towelling, with a cape of the gayest towelling that can be found. Feet are shod in scarlet bedroom slippers, and the cap is a turban made of loofah. A big sponge should hang from the waist, and a small tablet of pink soap be worn as a neck pendant.

And the Picturesque Appeals.

To represent a desert princess would please a child who likes the "grown-up" feeling. Full trousers of emerald green sateen are gathered at the ankles, and surmounted by a vest of many coloured stripes and a sleeveless bolero of good-

No more danger of eating over-ripe or too young fruit now that the "electric palate" has been created. All you have to do is take the fruit to be tested, apply the electrynx as above, and you soon will know the answer to the acidity and juice character and also the state of ripeness of the fruit. The electrynx is so sensitive that it can measure the action of one-millionth of an ampere, or about one-tenth of the "wing power" of an ordinary fly.

EVENING COLOURS

Paris evening clothes that are being publicly approved by distinguished women are the sort that call no attention to themselves apart from the woman inside them. One of the most significant changes in the absence of black. The financial depression supplies all the ebony the world can stand, and tender and hopeful colours are called out along the clothes line. The Parisienne without her black is something startling and decidedly pleasing to the eye. Pink is one of the colours the most in favour. Pale blue and leaf-bud green are worn. White keeps its place, and, for sober shades, there are deep purple, blue, brown, and cinnamon.

EMBROIDERED HOSIERY

Brand new for popular wear is embroidered hosiery. Usually there is a little formalized pattern across the instep, running up the shin. They are very attractive in light tones, with pastel embroidery.

Gift paper lined with cotton, or gold oil-baize will serve. A gold cap with flowing veil of white book muslin, red Turkish slippers, and brass bangles and anklets complete the picture.

The boy who attends as a Chinese mandarin is also good to see in pale blue sateen trousers tight at the ankles and a conical of Oriental tapestry over a vest of yellow velvet. He wears a black satin cap and long scarlet pointed shoes.

TO-DAY'S RECIPE.

Boil three-quarters of a pint of milk with one tablespoonful of finely chopped lemon peel and four ounces of caster sugar, sprinkle in two tablespoonfuls of small sago, and simmer together for ten minutes. Add quarter of an ounce of gelatine before cooling.

Fold in two tablespoonfuls of liqueur or fruit syrup and two large tablespoonfuls of whipped cream, with about one teaspoonful of vanilla to flavour, and turn into a mould that has been wetted with cold water. When set turn out and garnish with desiccated coconut, some of which has been coloured pink and some green with a few drops of harmless colouring matter.

ASSURING SHOE SMARTNESS

Shaped shoe trees, the kind that fill out the shoes perfectly, are indispensable to shoesmartness. The minute you take off your shoes, put the shoe trees in, brush your shoes and put away carefully. The trees do their best work when shoes come fresh from being worn. When you consider that your shoes have fully as much time on the trees as on your feet, you realize the importance of this type of shoe care.

This is Lyolene's bracelet and scarf pin of wood. The centre disc is of silver metal.

GREAT NEW MYSTERY SERIAL

"WEEK-END MURDER"

BY GABRIEL F. FORBUSH

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

The story opens with a prologue in which a murder is committed by a homicidal maniac. Later he boards a train for Long Island, thinking of the pleasant weekend he is to have there. The name of the murderer is not disclosed.

The scene shifts to the Long Island home of LINDA and TOM AVERILL, married three years and much in love. The Averills have fine guests for the weekend: COUSIN AMOS PEABODY, elderly, distant relative of Linda's; CAPTAIN DE VOS, handsome Belgian representing a European perfume manufacturer with whom Averill hopes to do business; MR. STATLANDER, middlewestern manager of the firm Averill works for; MARVIN PRATT, former suitor of Linda's; and LIAN SHAUGHNESSY, Irish writer on a lecture tour.

The house party gets off to a bad start. Cousin Amos starts a heated argument with Shaughnessy whom he denounces as a dangerous rebel for defending Gandhi's work in India. Next morning, Bunty, the wretched dog is found brutally killed. Cousin Amos plays golf with Statlander, criticizing the other's game until Statlander breaks a club in disgust. At the Country Club, Cousin Amos drinks several cocktails without knowing they are alcoholic and then insults De Vos. Tom finally persuades De Vos to overlook the insult. It is agreed that Cousin Amos will leave early next morning. The others, meanwhile, prepare for the Country Club dance.

CHAPTER VIII.

Tom Averill started violently. "Linda, do you really cling to that wild idea?" Annoyance at his own nervousness sharpened his voice. "After all—heavens, girl, do you think we're harboring a gang of murderers?"

"I'm not ragging you, Tom," Linda spoke compassionately. "It is hot and I know you're all fagged out—but this is serious. To answer your question, I do. Potential ones, anyhow." Her voice quavered as she yawned widely, with the complete abandon of a child. "Ugh! Wurr! Mph! Why do I feel so absolutely all in? I suppose this afternoon, and the sun and all—"

"It wasn't a pretty scene," Linda said. "Neither was the one last night—nor Mr. Statlander's behaviour, from what you tell me. It seems as if any one of the three were inflammable enough—"

"But the only ones Bunty irritated—that we know of—were Pratt and Cousin Amos."

"Oh, Marvin always had a temper. I remember—"

"Why omit your eminent cousin?" inquired her husband caustically. "Surely anyone who boasts of his fine physique and muscle and cold baths and such should be able to smash up a little dog—and his precious dignity was badly affronted."

Linda was determined not to quarrel. "Perhaps. But remember he went upstairs last night when we began to play bridge and I distinctly heard him snoring—he'd hate to be told he snored, wouldn't he?—when we came up hours later."

Tom relented. "Yes—he has a clean alibi. And, after all, he hasn't the temperament. A man who won't play cards because it might excite him and start a blood pressure and who can't get up late because the early morning hours are too precious to miss—well, I think he misses a lot but this time he misses being suspected."

"Uh-huh. Before we go down tell me how we'll divide up to go over to the dance."

"Any way you say, Binks."

"Suppose I take Marvin with me in the roadster and you take the rest in the other car. That all right with you?"

"Perfectly. I'll go now and tell De Vos about Cousin Amos. He'll agree to what you've planned, I know. He's really not so bad. Linda—and no one likes to be called an ungentlemanly foreigner."

"Ours a foreign ungentleman," agreed Linda. "I don't blame him though I thought for a moment—well, it's all fixed now. Tell him he won't see Cousin Amos again."

"Nobody will and that's all the party needs to make it a success. I'd just as soon not see him again myself but I suppose my duty as host—well, see you later. Duty goes for the final peacemaking!"

As though anxious to make up to her for the trouble of the day, Linda's guests rallied so delightfully at dinner that she felt a surge of confident relief.

Her confidence lasting, she ran upstairs after dinner and stopped at her cousin's room in a mood so cheerful that she had to conceal it out of consideration for his supposedly unsettled health.

"Sure you don't mind my leaving you, Cousin Amos?"

"Not at all, my child, not at all. I should hate to feel I was interfering with your pleasure."

"The maids go upstairs about this time or a little later," supplemented Averill, coming to stand by Linda in the doorway. "But if you call Rosie she'll hear and get you anything you want. I hope you'll be quite comfortable."

"Not only comfortable—content."

From the table on which stood a glass of water and a dish with apple, fruit, knife and serviette neatly laid out, Cousin Amos ostentatiously picked up a copy of "Marcus Aurelius"—and then started slightly. Leaning forward, he threw a silk handkerchief negligently over a larger book beneath the leather-bound classic—a trifle too negligently, thought Linda, whose shrewd suspicions pointed to something aghastly in the way of modern fiction.

"He is rather an old dear," she murmured at the stair head and then frowned and laughed. "Tom, do you hear that? The moment our backs were turned, he opened that casement window on the balcony! I especially asked him not to. I might have known he wouldn't give it up so easily!"

"Your ears must be pointed!" exclaimed her husband. "Why wasn't it anyone opening any window?"

"I know the particular grunt and squeak that darned thing gives when it's forced. Well, I hope it doesn't blow up a rain tonight. It won't stay closed—and he'll have to listen to it squeak back and forth all night. Then he'll wish he hadn't!"

As they started downstairs, Linda heard the door opposite Cousin Amos' room open and knew that Marvin was just behind them. At that second the old man called "Mr. Pratt! Mr. Pratt!" and the steps paused at his door.

"What do you suppose Cousin Amos wants of him?" she reflected. "Well—he knows we're waiting."

But several moments passed and Marvin did not come. Once Linda called up to him, a light yet definite summons meant as a hint to Cousin Amos whose voice went prattling on, the words unheard but the tone as usual bland and deliberate. She received no answer. "Oh, Pratt!" shouted Tom after another short wait, and this time Marvin's call of "Coming in a moment!" gave them hope.

The murmur of Cousin Amos' voice stopped abruptly. They all heard an angry exclamation and then the other man's voice, curt, brief, emphatic. Cousin Amos broke in to reply and then in the middle of a measured sentence a door slammed violently and Pratt appeared at the top of the staircase where he stood silent, breathing a little quickly.

"Come on!" urged Linda. "We're all ready, Marvin!"

"For a moment he did not move. Then, without answering, he came downstairs, face set, eyes dropped, and thrusting clenched hands into his pockets as he reached the lower steps."

"Whatever—" began Linda. Then common sense stopped her. It was no business of hers. Evidently Marvin was upset but was doing his best to conceal it. The others, shepherded out by Tom, seemed to notice no difference in his manner.

"You'll ride with me in the sliver," said Linda, being very cheerful and gay. "Tom will take the others. You're my special guest tonight."

"Oh—yes?" he answered with a curious inflection and followed the question, after a second, by an equally strange little laugh. "Your husband permits?"

"Don't be a goose!" Linda, slammed the door on her side viciously. "Marvin, you've better sense than that!"

"And you—consider yourself safe from the contamination of my presence?"

"Marvin, what on earth's the matter with you?" Linda was frankly astonished. "For heaven's sake, get over it, whatever it is. We invited you to visit us and we're glad you came. Now, if you remember, we're going to a party. I want you to enjoy yourself and I intend to enjoy myself. Now—which of the charming ladies that were here last night will be your first partner at the dance?"

"I don't know—I hadn't thought." His voice sounded sulky, but more natural. In spite of her brisk dismissal of his question Linda was still dazed by its unmistakable bitterness. First she had thought Marvin was hinting that Tom might be jealous. . . . Tom jealous of him, indeed! A wonder the man wouldn't use his eyes. But that last heavily sarcastic bit about the contamination gent. Perhaps he was just trying his hand at repartee. Marvin was certainly not cut out for the light and amusing. Well, he was talking—your husband first. May I have the pleasure of the second dance?"

"Oh, Marvin," Linda sighed. "You do date back, my dear! Things aren't the way they were in our childhood. First dance and second and all that. You just dance till you drop and one merges into the other. Sure, I'll dance with you first after Tom but if you wait for the music to start and begin again you'll never get any where. When it seems as if other people were beginning to change, give me the high-sign and I'll take it as a formal 'bid'."

He chuckled and seemed more at ease. "You sound as if you were 50, Linda."

"Well, I've passed my first quarter century. I love to say that—it seems so positively elderly."

He laughed outright. "And by that count, I'm going on my first half-century. You remember. I have several years your advantage."

"Uh-huh. Hardly any, it seems now. But when I first knew you—oh, the difference between 16 and 23!"

"Were you really such a kid? Heavens, as I look back, you were more grown up then than now."

"You certainly haven't changed much, Marvin. But then you always were a grown-up, solemn sort of person."

"Yes." He moved restlessly. "But you've rubbed that in a good deal, Linda."

"Oh, sorry!" She hadn't realized he could be sensitive about that holdoffish, stiff manner of his. "I haven't meant to. Just the hang-over from feeling so very young and respectful when first you hove upon my sight. Now I look back on it, I must have treated you then as if you (Continued on Page 15.)

NEW YORK STOCK
EXCHANGEYESTERDAY'S MARKET
EASY

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was easy yesterday. Business done: 930,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports:—A dull holiday market after early firmness eased off, due to sales made apparently for the purpose of establishing tax losses.

CHRISTMAS

To-morrow is Christmas Day.
"And she brought forth her first-born Son, and wrapped Him in swaddling clothes, and laid Him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn." And supposing all this had never happened? Let us imagine a world without Christmas Day, a tumultuous sheer perplexity, in which there is no anchorage, a desert in which death, the severer of dear companionships, must be a terrifying obsession for man from the cradle to the grave; a world without the precept or the charity which is love, without an acknowledged duty towards God and another towards one's neighbour. The thought is inadmissible. Two thousand years ago the faith of all the world was changed, and we cling fast
to-day to the hopes and the ideals and the faith which were then born among us. We pass through troublous times, but we shall fear no evil; for we are sustained, at the very bottom of our hearts, by a certitude that nothing is in vain, and that, whatever we may have to suffer or endure, an imperishable hope remains. There is much talk of the decay of faith, and in Russia a ruthless tyranny has tried, not only to murder mankind of the very idea of God. The talk amounts to very little, and even the efficient tyranny in Russia has not yet prevailed. This birth of a Babe, wrapped in swaddling clothes and laid in a manger, has regenerated the world, and we know well to-day that, without a Christmas Day to-morrow, it would be a sorry, sombre place. We have all bought our Christmas presents, sent our Christmas greetings, and done what we may to keep alive friendship and affection and goodwill. We have before us a time of pleasure and holiday, recreation and amusement. That again is a merciful dispensation, and we do well to make the most of it. The whole world is sick, and a few days of release from the problems of its cure will do the world all the good in the world. As for those who scoff at Christmas, either in its spiritual sense or in its secular enjoyment, they belong, whatever their age may be, to a very old-fashioned school of thought. It is the mark of the bitter cynic, who is generally very young, to ridicule tradition and sentiment.

In every age he has his place.
But to-day in a more sincere society his place is small enough.
We are not to be frightened from our plum puddings and mince pies by the doubts of doctors or checked in our pleasure-making by the pessimists, or prevented from going to church by the pretence that the foundation of the Christian faith is a pathetic illusion.

Planning Ahead

Sir Arthur Salter has put himself in the vanguard of the growing number of economic thinkers who have embraced planning as the ultimate goal of economic life. People confuse the new ideal when they associate it with the end of private enterprise.
According to Sir Arthur, deliberate planning and control must be so ordered as effectively to safeguard the public interest while at the same time allowing for the continuing vitality of private initiative. There has been planning in plenty, as he pointed out, in separate organisations. A factory, a labour group, even an entire industry—many such examples may be found of economic planning. But they have not been integrated to the end that the public interest shall be served. They serve special ends. And the present economic situation has disclosed what should long ago have been apparent—that selfishness in the long run does not cater even to sectional aggrandisement, let alone the public interest. Take any one of the price-fixing schemes. Rubber was once price-controlled.
Prices soared. Rather than pay tribute to the monopoly, government furthered plans to develop synthetic rubber.
Economic nationalism was fostered. New areas were planted to rubber. Eventually the extra supply came on the market, competing avidly for the swollen prices. But the pressure drove prices down almost to the vanishing point, leaving the entire industry prostrate, former monopolists and new growers together. The lesson is perfectly clear. It could be duplicated as between Capital and Labour, as between protected factory and unprotected farm, as between banking and commerce. One section of the community is dependent upon the other. Perhaps it is too much to expect every section to cooperate on the basis of the public interest. Each is governed too rigorously by its own specialised requirements. Here is where government comes in. Yet, as from the cradle to the grave; a
charity which is love, without
an acknowledged duty towards God and another towards one's neighbour. The thought is inadmissible. Two thousand years ago the faith of all the world
was changed, and we cling fast
to-day to the hopes and the

A "Sound Museum"

The Twentieth Century has been so busy playing with its new scientific toys, like the cinematograph film and the gramophone record, that it has not yet properly appreciated their extraordinary value as reporters of contemporary life.
It is satisfactory, however, that a very interesting beginning has been made by a German professor, whose "museum" of records of voices of famous persons, collected over a period of twenty years, has been opened in Germany. The gramophone companies have left us a richer heritage than the film companies, but many a voice among the statesmen and actors of the early part of our century will never be heard again. Some of the earlier records of great singers and musicians are already almost worth their weight in gold, and, imperfect as these are, they seem to be revitalised by that new wonder, the radiogramophone. Nowadays the mechanical reproduction of the human voice is well-nigh perfect, and posterity need not lack the opportunity of listening to lecturers, politicians, preachers, actors, and musicians of our epoch if we take pains to prepare a carefully indexed album. Posterity may not think much of the collection, but it will never forgive us if we leave no collection at all.

BIG GAME TROPHY
DAYS

By A. P. GARLAND

A LONDON taxidermist has confessed that the great days of taxidermy—and what days they were, to be sure!—have gone for ever, and that, from a business point of view, he'd be better off as an expert tomato-stuffer. For the fact is, big-game shooting is no longer in vogue.

Time was when every well-to-do young man who had been crossed in love used to go off ibex-shooting in the Himalayas in order to forget. Frankly, I could never see how the shooting of an ibex that had had nothing to do with the love affair at all could relieve an aching heart. No more, I'm sure, could the ibex see it.

Anyhow, in due course the young man would come back with a cargo of ibex horns, which he'd hand over to the taxidermist to mount for him.

Off to Shoot Elephant.

Similarly, in the old days one was constantly bargaining into men in Piccadilly with young cannon under their arms, who would tell you they were off to shoot elephant, harte-beest, Rocky Mountain sheep, or something, according to taste. The only quadruped that seemed to be nobody's child was a rhinoceros. The reason for this was that this gifted animal wears only one tusk. Now it takes two tusks to make a trophy, one alone looking too lonely on a wall.
So the rhinoceros was neglected.

But the result of all this was a keep taxidermists working overtime.

To-day a shikari is satisfied to restrict his shooting to clay pipes and glass balls—with an occasional rabbit when he feels unusually ferocious.

A well-known shot—Eton and Hoddeston Gas Works—told me why.

"Big-game shooting is a washout, old boy," said he. "Those poisonous film companies have ruined it. They simply infest Central Africa and places like that, and they've filmed the wild animals so often that the latter have become tame and will eat off —I mean, out of your hand. A pukka shikari would as soon think of shooting a prize Hereford as one of them."

Then he added darkly, "I warn the world that the supply of big-game trophies will soon vanish."

Awe-some Sight.

This last remark rather horrified me. No more big-game trophies! Then what are golf clubs going to do?

I shall never forget my first visit to a golf clubhouse and how awed I was at the sight of the great skulls mounted on boards on the walls of the dining-room.

In my ignorance I said to the secretary, "They look like the original founder members. Are they? To which he replied with a kindly smile, "No, no. These are the skulls of antelopes and things presented by members."

So the problem faces us, What will now golf clubs do for trophies?

Well, yesterday, driving to the 9th hole at Parly, I cor-pused a crow—and I bet he was surprised —on the green of the 12th. That bird I'm having stuffed and presented to the club.

Does the solution of the problem lie here or does it not?

Smokers' Christmas Proverb:— Put not the gift "Flora" in the mouth.

"Mistletoe is dead nowadays," says a writer. Yes, and buried.

If there's one thing a man would rather be without, he usually gets it as a Christmas present.

Early settlers are always esteemed in Hongkong—especially at the beginning of the month.

During a festive moment of uncontrollable exuberance recently, a young man attending a local party came into momentary contact with a fire-bucket which happened to be passing. Not unnaturally, he looked a little pale!

It's usually the man with the tough beard who takes it on the chin.

A writer declares that the bagpipes originated in France. We deprecate this accusation during the season of goodwill to all men.

We hear of a cricketer who went to buy a turkey and came out with a duck.

Let's hope that in the matter of debt revision, it'll be a case of U.S. "Aye."

Coloured tar is the latest invention. Things are coming to a pretty pitch!

The beer trade has its own official journals. Kind of barrel organs.

Many bachelors maintain their mothers and say nothing about it.
They just keep mum.

We hear of a young bachelor who, when asked what he would like in his stocking to-night, laconically replied—leg!

Always wish when you eat your first mince-pie. Or you may wish that you hadn't!

Holly makes a good form of decoration, but the local variety has not nearly the kick of the real article, especially when placed beneath the sheet.

To-morrow Night: The Festive Board. The Following Morning:
The Festive Bored!

Many people who ask for your candid opinion really mean candied.

When America goes wet, it will be known as the Brew-nited States.

Baby, Baby Bunting,

A China Coast captain says he only smokes when on shore leave.
A whiff in every port!

We suppose these tobacco trusts could be called smoke rings.

The mites test is well-known in Hongkong, where people are often judged by appearances.

The Elizabethan style of fashions is said to be coming back.
Looks as if we're in for a ruff time.

In the opinion of a man we met the other

encourage even indifferent
carol singing, for the sake of old custom.
They also serve who only stand the waits.

The Pick of the Season:—
To-morrow's turkey bones.

We noticed a well-known talpan debt revision, buying sundry items in a chemist shop, obviously in intelligent anticipation of a festive week-end. Enos!

According to a contemporary,
carol singers are to do their stuff at the Peninsula Hotel at noon tomorrow. The residents will have to gin and bear it!

Father cares nothing for poets.
And all their expressions sublime;
He'll turn down a sonnet with
"Oh, it's
Some highbrow confection in rhyme."

But Christmas will be too excellent—
His ardour no doubt unrestrained,
And he'll make a great hit by reciting
The mottoes the crackers contained.

Another thing that has become as important to a man as how many miles he can get on a gallon is how many years he can get to a suit.

Talking alarm clocks have been put on the market. Let's hope they don't start arguing.

According to the Inspector of Schools, Peak children are "intelligent children, the offspring of intelligent parents." Of course, it was attitude that caused the mountain goat to say to his brother of the plains, "Now we're off!
Spring!"

Despite the vogue of the motor, the horse is still in favour in many parts of the world. Lots of people in Hongkong keep a nag about the house, too.

Fewer children, we are told, are believing in Santa Claus. The depression must have something to do with this.

The Australian cricket barracks menu must be "Jardines

The dollar is going down, down,

Looks as if the Aussies are going to take some beating in the

2 OR 4 WHEELS?

Rivalry of the "Baby Car."

It happens annually before a car show, and this year is not unlike others.

I refer to the rumour that we are going to have a shoal of cars of five or six horse-power at a price comparable with that of the motor-cycle, and that motorcycles will die.

I may be wrong, but I do not think the motor-cycle will ever die, nor do I think that the baby car will ever strongly appeal to the young people who motor-cycle.

The car—no matter how "nippy" it may be—is a lifeless, slow thing to the motor-cyclist. He feels confined by the mass around him and restricted to the highways. With the motor-cycle a rider is part and parcel of his mount with a car he feels he is just the man steering. The sport thrill is what he misses.

For and Against

It is still necessary on a foul day for a rider to wear special clothing, but the motor-cyclist places against this the hundreds of fine days and evenings in summer and winter when the fast, exhilarating spin, a ride without a destination in view, is the main thing.

It is days and evenings such as these, with the fuel tap turned up, the machine going like a living thing, the wind playing a melody of speed over cars and cheeks, that make the motor-cyclist think of change only when the blood is running cold with the years.

Then there is the question of expense. It is easy to think that four-wheelers will come down to motor-cycle prices, but they never will. Initial cost will always be greater. On top of that the motor-cyclist who turns to four wheels finds running costs immeasurably greater. It is not only a matter of fuel consumption, but insurance, garage, tax, repairs, and reliability, which, in so many ways, are not equal to that of the two-wheeler.

Running Costs

Some may question this remark on reliability, but experience has taught many a sad lesson through the pocket.

That is not all. Compare, with your small-car friends who have been on a tour, the prices charged for refreshment, food and accommodation. Unless the friends have been very careful in their selection of stopping places they will tell you that they had to pay an appreciable amount more for travelling with those extra two wheels.

There may come a time when cars of small horse-power will be nearly as cheap as motor-cycles, but the only competitor mechanically that I can foresee killing the motor-cycle is a light aeroplane at a cheap initial cost, and that is not likely to happen for a long time yet.

SPEEDERS WORK OUT FINE.

Youthful speeders in Piedmont, Calif., are on the decline. The reason is that they are serving their fines at the business end of a pick and shovel, and behind a heavily loaded wheel-barrow. Loath to imprison the youths after they repeatedly told of inability to pay fines due to the lack of employment, officials have sentenced them to week-end labour.
Above you see a Police Official directing the toil of three speeders.

BUYING BOOM.

Following Motor Show
at Olympia.

Factories Busy.

A remarkable revival in car buying has resulted from the Olympia Motor Show.

A number of accessory factories are so flooded with orders that they have been forced to work 24 hours a day, and this will continue for six or eight weeks.

Some firms are turning out 7,500
"sets" for cars a week. Several car makers have had to increase production to the peak month figures of last March.

In the floating power method of mounting engines—practically standard now—the new 10 h.p.
Citroen has an unusually large amount of free movement and the car runs at all speeds and loads without vibration being felt. Other advanced cars in this way are the Hillman Minx, Singer Nine and Austin Ten.

The Austin Twelve six-cylinder is unique in having the engine suspended from the frame instead of resting on it (to be taken out it has to be lowered, not raised) and the results are so good that it forfeits shadows big changes.

A fault in many cars has been cylinder and valve seat warping, mainly caused by steam pockets forming in the cooling system.
Progress has been made here in making the single outlet of large diameter, and, in other cars, in fitting a branched type water manifold. Wolseley cars, from the 12 h.p. Hornet up to the scale, are outstanding in value, road performance and looks.

The Hornet now has standard hardened cylinder liners, thus ensuring that the cylinder bores are practically unwearable.

Cooling Control.

There is not yet agreement among makers regarding thermostats to control cooling water temperature—though it is to be found in the Austin Twelve six-cylinder and the Riley—but thermostats will be standard before long. The same may be said of air cleaners and carbura-tion. In this respect the Morris Ten is a good example, with air drawn into the carburettor passing first through the cleaner and taking with it fumes escaped from the sump.

I would have liked to see greater improvement in steering. Here again it is in the Wolseley, Morris and M.G. cars that a good departure has taken place. The new M.G. Magnette—the 30 m.p.h. car —has a split track rod which gives greater stability and better cornering than the single one-piece track rod.

I give a good mark to the Triumph for leading the way among small cars by fitting permanent jacks, readily dropped into position.

Anti-Dazzle.

As regards dazzle, one of the nearest "ants" was on a Rolls.
The screen is of double glass, and by turning a knob on the dash the space between is filled or emptied at will with a blue fluid varied in intensity.

In the economy class the saloons which attracted me for good looks and layout were the Austin Ten, Citroen Ten, Lanchester Ten, Morris Ten, Riley Nine and Twelve, and the Wolseley Twelve (Hornet). Outstanding in the bigger classes were the Daimler Fifteen, the new Morris 25-h.p., Singer 18-h.p., Sunbeam 16 and 20-h.p. (with synchromesh easy gear change system), and the Vauxhall 17-h.p., also with a synchromesh system.

Testing the "Tens."

I have been on a short test in most of the "Tens." They have engines with a reserve of power greater than most people would think possible, with passenger space, travel comfort, and road qualities so high that selection becomes merely a matter of personal tastes.

Further, although these cars—for the most part—are below £200 in price nothing essential is omitted from their equipment.
Possibly the most remarkable range of family saloons has been introduced, ranging from the £250 and £300 marks; as examples, the Morris-Oxford and the Singer two-litre de luxe models offer more for the money than can be found in foreign rivals.

In cars priced between £300 and £400 I think we have the world beaten. I was impressed by the 25-h.p. Morris—the largest car produced by the Cowley works and one which, despite the burden of taxation, will be a popular purchase in Britain.

Two others which are genuine money-value models are the Wolseley 16 and the Wolseley 21-h.p. County saloon.

TRADE OPTIMISM WORTH £500,000.

Motor Firm Planning for Coming Prosperity.

At least one British industry is free from the doldrums of depression. Many firms in the motor trade report good business and most happy of all comes the news from the one old established concern—Vauxhall Motors Ltd.— which is confident of good times ahead.

Their confidence is based upon present business in the home market and overseas, and so assured are they that business is definitely on the upgrade that they are expanding half-a-million pounds on erecting new buildings and installing new plant. The work has already commenced and the Vaux-hall factory at Luton, now producing Vauxhall cars and Bedford trucks, is being made capable of greatly increased output. Employment will be created for some hundreds of additional employees.

Approximately 1,000 cars and trucks per month are sent overseas from the Vauxhall factory to points so widely apart as Africa, Jamaica, China, Portugal, Trinidad, Canary Islands, Scandinavia, Basra, Antwerp, Lagos, Spain and Russia, not to mention India, Australia and New Zealand, where Bedford trucks and Vauxhall cars have already established a very secure place in these markets.

It is indeed heartening news that demand from home and overseas markets has exceeded the production facilities of the Vauxhall works and, be it noted, the demand is not due to any sudden rush.
Vauxhall cars and Bedford trucks have for a long time been building up a steady preference for themselves wherever they have been introduced and representatives of the firm in nearly all parts of the world to which these vehicles are exported, report that insistent demand is growing for British made vehicles.

The urgency of the building extensions is evidenced by the fact that the work has been entrusted to several contractors, all of whom are working under a heavy penalty should they be behind schedule, but will gain a substantial bonus if they are before stipulated time.
The work is being carried on right round the clock.

A recent order for six rollers has been placed in Shanghai.

ECONOMY IN DRIVING.

When Jerks Cost Money.

(By Chiltern in the "News-Chronicle")

Fuel consumption in the future, I am convinced, is likely to be a serious problem, though there is at present no official confirmation of the story that an immediate further increase of 2d. a gallon is likely in the cost of petrol. There must be thousands of motorists standing at the parting of the ways—staring at the car or using it with economy.

If a man prefers to drive at a good pace, he will use more fuel than if he makes a patient effort to save waste. There is as much waste in driving methods as in carburettor setting. It is surprising how few users realise the way in which fuel consumption is affected by driving.

Immoderate acceleration on gears, violent use of the throttle pedal on top gear, a jerky throttle control, which administers shock suction to the carburettor, all cause an increase in the fuel consumed, and that means waste.

Because "A" gets 20 miles to a gallon with a car I am not saying that "B" ought to get the same with an identical car, for the circumstances in which the cars are running have a considerable bearing on the results. In hilly country and in busy towns a car will have a heavier consumption than a car in less strenuous places.

Effects of Acceleration.
When the first 4d. tax was placed on fuel I asked Professor Low for any definite data which he had on driving and waste. He told me that in a test of a car with a normal consumption of 20 miles per gallon Acceleration on top gear from 15 to 30 m.p.h. meant a drop to less than 10 miles per gallon.

Violent acceleration in the same conditions brought 11 miles per gallon.

From 18 to 32 m.p.h. in medium-engined cars the consumption is practically constant with decent average driving methods. Above and below that the consumption of fuel increases.

Speedometers being somewhat uncertain in truth and fuel pump delivery not absolutely accurate, the average driver has a task to get accurate data, but I am confident that most of them would be able to check the saving effect of a change of driving ways.

Let us take two drivers, one to whom the price of fuel is immaterial and the other one who has to save shillings. The first driver will get away smartly on first, the same on the next gear, and so to top gear, on which he will settle down at about 40 m.p.h.

For a reduction of speed demanded by road and traffic exigencies he will drop to lower gear—allowing the engine to help the brakes—and then accelerate to cruising speed as quickly as he can. For hills he would let the engine develop its power at high revs., in all cases using gears.

This driver's fuel consumption would be roughly 30 per cent. greater than that of the second man with the same car.

The second man, guarding against waste, would get away in no hurry, would be in top gear before the car was doing 15 m.p.h., and would gradually increase speed to 25-30 m.p.h.—the less his throttle opening the better his results.

If the car had to slow down for any traffic demand he would remain on top gear. He would know that his subsequent acceleration would not be rapid, but that matters not to him.

On the hills he would use the next lower gear only when the top gear made it impossible for the car to get up, and on the lower gears he would open the throttle only as far as was necessary to give the climbing power.

Going downhill, according to circumstances, he would either coast in neutral or with the clutch out and the engine switched off.

In traffic the difference in driving methods would show an even greater difference in economy.

I am not suggesting extremes in economy driving ways which mean discomfort, but just thought, understanding and a conscious reasoning, which mean no loss of great pleasure or time, but a material saving in fuel and oil costs. The instruments on your car will help you to practise economy, for they all have their messages for you.

Steadiness the Best Way.
I do not advocate crawling, but steadiness. The driver whose progress is a series of jumps to 45 m.p.h. and rapid deceleration to 20-25 m.p.h. is simply encouraging waste, particularly with the form of carburettor now fitted on so many cars.

The secret of economy should guard against sudden movements of the accelerator pedal.

With some cars which have an exceptionally light spring on the throttle this is not too easy, but the fitting of a footrest would help. Then there is the steering wheel throttle-control. A far steadier throttle can be obtained on a rough road with that than with the foot.

Another aspect of the question of steady pace versus fast pace is the economy which steady pace brings in other things. The steadier the travel the less the wear and tear on all mechanism and tyres and oil consumption. Many motorists forget that oil consumption concerns their pockets considerably.

In an engine working hard the old becomes hotter than usual, thins, and escapes more easily from all places.

24 CYLINDERS.

New British Engine.

25,000 "REVS."

London, Nov. 25.

Twenty-four cylinders, turning over the crankshaft at 25,000 revolutions a minute, is the new automobile engine turned out by Prof. A. M. Low, English scientist and inventor.

The engine, termed "the fastest automobile engine in the world," dispenses with inlet and exhaust valves and is said to never need decarbonizing.

A multiplicity of cylinders seems to be the trend in English automobile style this season. Numerous twelves and sixes are seen on the market, the idea being to sell the customer the idea that he is getting more for his money when he gets two or four more cylinders in his car.

Body to Fit Engine.
Professor Low's engine, although not yet incorporated in an automobile, may be soon. It is said. The design of this car will be something new in the automobile field. It will consist of a very long hood, followed by a conventional body of a passenger car, giving it an unusual appearance.

As the result of the high revolutions, this engine is to be exceptionally smooth in V formation, and without valves or attendant timing mechanism. Because of the few moving parts it is said to be in operation.

Superchargers Feed Gas.
Gasoline is fed into the cylinder chambers under pressure. Superchargers are used to gasoline. The mixture does not explode as much as it but thereby eliminating all jerky motions and giving less exhaust noise.

"The engine will need little maintenance," it is said. "Experiments show that the high rate of flow of the gas prevents any carbon forming on the pistons or cylinders. In addition there are no valves to adjust."

Despite its enormous rate of revolution and the large number of cylinders, the engine will be produced as a 20 horsepower unit.

LIBEL IN NEWSPAPER

£100 DAMAGES AWARDED

The hearing was concluded recently of the libel action by Mr.
Leslie Martin Summers, of Malden-road, Cheam, Surrey, against Sir Wyndham Childs, formerly Assistant Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police, and Obhams Press, Limited.

Mr. Summers complained of an article in "John Bull" which, he alleged, imputed dishonesty by him.

The defence was a denial that the words were defamatory.

Evidence was called for the defendants in support of their denial that the words complained of were true in their ordinary and natural meaning.

Mr. Comyns Carr, K.C., commenting on the fact that Sir Wyndham Childs had not given evidence, stated that he had been denied the opportunity of asking him if he were not ashamed of making use of "John Bull" to blast the reputation of a young man like Mr. Summers.

Summing up, Lord Hewart said that Mr. Summers seemed to have been very unlucky in his associates. He was brought into the article quite incidentally and the jury must not forget that it stated that he might have been quite an innocent party. They knew now that Summers was involved in police court proceedings, but was discharged on the ground that there was no case against him to go for trial.

The jury found in favour of Mr. Summers and awarded him £100 damages. Judgment for this amount and costs was entered against both defendants.

"STERLINGARIA"

SIR BASIL BLACKETT'S MONETARY SYSTEM

"Sterlingaria" is put on the map by Sir Basil Blackett, whose book "Planned Money" is published by Constable and Co. (5s.).

Sir Basil is a director of the Bank of England, and though he writes only in his private capacity the book throws much light on the policy of the Bank and of the Treasury.

He does not want an early return to the gold standard. He says:

"With the gold standard working as unsatisfactorily as it did in the years preceding 1931, it will be a gain and not a loss to Britain to have her hands free and her powers of independent action un-hampered by being directly tied up with the fortunes of the American dollar and the French franc, and by having her prices largely at the mercy of gold prices."

Sterlingaria is his alternative,
"an international monetary system based on a number of local currencies, so managed as to maintain a constant level of internal prices."

ALDERMAN ONCE
A PEDLAR

Alderman J. G. Graves well known as Sheffield's benefactor, has formed the benefit of the city a charitable trust with funds amounting to more than £400,000.

The whole of the trust fund is the gift of Alderman Graves, who has already given parks of several hundreds of acres to Sheffield, £20,000 towards a new art gallery, £20,000 towards a new central library and a number of playing fields for congested parts of the city.

The trust, which has already been in secret existence for some time, will undertake educational, scientific, medical and other public benefactions which might not otherwise be carried out at the public expense.

The size of the gift is indicated by the fact that the trust deed revenue stamp alone cost £8,667.

"In due course," Alderman Graves says "there will be seven permanent trustees, and ultimately this number will be increased to ten by the appointment of three representative trustees, one appointed by the Corporation, one by the Cutlers' Company and one by the town trustees."

Asked whether the formation of the trust would mean that his own public welfare efforts as an individual would cease, Alderman Graves said, "No, certainly not. I have never coveted great wealth for its own sake, and my real ambition has always been to be useful to my fellow citizens." He added that the trust represented a "considerable portion" of his personal estate.

Alderman Graves, who was Lord Mayor of Sheffield in 1927, at one time held a pedlar's certificate and sold goods from door to door in the city.

FRENCH COUPLE ENTERTAIN AT REPULSE BAY HOTEL.

Madame Line Marlys of the Casino de Paris and her partner, Monsieur Maurice Stephen of the Theatre de 10 Heures have recently arrived in Hongkong, where they intend to stay a week or two.

These two noted artistes are travelling around the world and have obtained unrivalled success in every country they have visited. Their tour included Germany, Austria, Hungary and the Balkan States, as well as all countries east of Suez. Their performances were given at the Royal Opera of Bombay, King's Theatre of Madras, and in many other places. In Indo-China, they performed under the patronage of the Governors, Generals and other high officials. They broadcasted in Colombo, and were recalled three times, as well as in Calcutta and Bombay.

The newspapers in all these places were unanimous in acknowledging the great talent of these two artistes, who are giving an entertainment at the Repulse Bay Hotel at the carnival to-night and on Boxing Night.

The above photos of Madame Line Marlys and M. Maurice Stephen were taken by the D'Alis Studio, of Gloucester Building.

The Bible and Archaeology

Archaeology is the science of excavation and the examination of what has been discovered. Its province lies not only in the deciphering of inscriptions, but also in the examination of what were the customs of the people, what their religion consisted in, how far they were civilized and what contact they had with other nations. Not only can it do this, but it can prove the truth or falsehood of historical statements and can also find whether the history agrees with the geography of the place in question at a particular period.

What bearing has archaeology had on the Bible? It has shown that the origin of the human race was far as we know it, is to be found in Mesopotamia, that is, the country where Eden was. That there was a deluge of wide extent, that the division of nations agreed with that of Genesis Chapter Ten. That there was a city of Ur of the Chaldees. That the land of Canaan was under the dominion of Babylon at one time during the life of Abraham and the names of the kings recorded in Gen. Chap. XIV. are historical. That Sodom and Gomorrah were destroyed by fire. That the narratives of Genesis and Exodus bear marks of close contact with Egypt in language and customs. That there was an oppression of the Israelites in Egypt. That Jericho was entered after the walls had been destroyed by an earthquake and that it was then burnt. That the land of Canaan was conquered by the Israelites, but the older inhabitants not altogether exterminated. That the nations of Canaan, Philistia, Edom and Moab, who first appear in the Biblical narratives are all correct. There have been no anachronisms. In the space of this article it is impossible to trace the archaeological agreement with Scripture beyond Joshua. It is fairly well known.

But perhaps it may be permitted to go more into detail over the accounts of Joseph in Egypt and Moses. Prof. Yahuda has recently shown that the word "ark" is an Egyptian word and is used in the Bible only in Genesis and Exodus. The word for "bulrush" is Egyptian and only occurs here and in Isaiah when he is speaking of the Nile, so also with the word "flax." The expression "bow the knee" is Egyptian, so also is "Father of Pharaoh," Pharaoh being considered as god. The expression "miserablest behind the mill" is Egyptian. In Ex. X. 6 (AV margin), "the eye of the land" is the monothestic equivalent for Egyptian "eye of Ra," the Sun-god. The brass mirrors which the Israelites gave to Moses to make the laver have been found in dozens in Egypt at this period in Egyptian history. So that with this evidence before us it is very difficult to believe that these chapters were written by anyone else than Moses and more difficult still to believe that they were not written until after 800 BC and written in Palestine.

Another important fact is the light that has been thrown upon the cults practised in Canaan before the arrival of the Israelites. Revolting orgies were practised and human sacrifice was common. After the conquest of the country by the Israelites these to a very large extent ceased. This shows that the religion of Israel was not a slow development from Canaanite cults, but a different religion superimposed after the conquest of the land.

Here it should be said that though archaeology has, little by little, been revealing the historical character of the Biblical records, not one solitary discovery has gone to support the Higher Critical position. This is not said carelessly. One after another archaeologists who went out convinced of the Higher Critical position have been turning more and more away from it.

The writer will be pardoned if he makes bold to say that in his opinion within fifty years the main Higher Critical theories as they are held now will have been discarded altogether.

Archaeology throws floods of light onto the Bible, but do not let us be so taken up with the light and its brilliance as to forget that which it lights up. The Book will repay all the study that can be put into it.

JAPANESE ROUT

CHINESE REPORT SUCCESS IN MANCHURIA

Peking, Dec. 23.
A radio message received here from General Ting Chao, Chairman of the Kirin Provincial Government, states that General Porbaski, Commander of the Japanese forces in Kirin and General Porbaski, Chief of Staff of the Artillery Division, have been seriously wounded and a considerable number of Japanese troops killed in a severe battle with the Kirin Volunteers along the Sungari River.

General Ting states that two thousand Japanese troops were decimated in an ambush at Tashaiho and Yuanpaoshan after they had occupied Paoting with the assistance of tanks and bombing planes. Following the terrific fight, the Volunteers defeated the Japanese and recaptured Paoting, the Japanese troops retreating to Kuching.

According to Chinese reports, the remnants of General Su Pingwen's forces scored a brilliant victory, having captured Nankai along the Hulan-Hailin Railway. These forces assisted the troops of General Ma Chan-shan in endeavouring to recapture points on the Railway.

Heavy fighting is proceeding.—

Japanese Envoy

Changchun, Dec. 23.
The Japanese ambassador, Mr. Muto, has presented his credentials to Mr. Henry Pu Yi.

In presenting his credentials to Mr. Pu Yi Mr. Muto paid a tribute to the "steady development of Manchukuo since its declaration of independence" and expressed "pleasure to note that Manchukuo under Pu Yi was making substantial contributions to restoring peace in the Far East by enhancing popular welfare and observing international obligations."

The Ambassador concluded by saying that "hearty co-operation between Manchukuo and Japan and their mutual existence and prosperity was essential for ensuring peace in the Far East and the reason why Japan took the initiative of extending recognition to the new State."

Mr. Pu Yi responded by expressing pleasure at the greeting. Mr. Muto was Japan's first ambassador and as the envoy who signed the Japan-Manchukuo protocol with him, Mr. Pu Yi thanked him for "Japan's sympathy with Manchukuo," expressing the firm belief that relations between Manchukuo

"A LOYA LOFFICER"

INDIAN POLICE RESERVE
FAREWELL CHIEF

"He has been a loyal and faithful officer." These words were used by the Inspector General of Police (Hon. Mr. E. D. C. Wolfe) yesterday afternoon at a tea party given by the Indian Police Reserve in honour of its retiring chief, Mr. Sirdar Khan.

The private lounge of the Exchange Restaurant was crowded with members of the Indian community and high officials of the Police Department.

Among those present were the Hon. Mr. E. D. C. Wolfe, the Deputy Inspector General of Police, Mr. T. H. King, the deputy superintendent of the Police Reserve, Mr. T. L. King, Messrs. Major and Thompson (Assistant Superintendents of Police), the Hon. Dr. Ts'o and Chief Inspector P. Grant.

Mr. Bishan Singh outlined the career of Mr. Sirdar Khan and referred to the length to the tactful, kind and considerate manner in which he handled the men under him. They deeply regretted his loss, but extended their best wishes for his health and prosperity in retirement.

At the request of Mr. Bishan Singh, the Inspector General of Police presented to Mr. Sirdar Khan a handsome silver-mounted walking stick with inscription. He paid a tribute to the loyal service which their guest had rendered to the community. "He was an outstanding figure in the Indian community," said Mr. Wolfe, "and his loss will be deeply felt."

Mr. Wolfe made special mention of the work Mr. Sirdar Khan had done in building up the Indian Company of the Police Reserve, and his splendid service during the general strike. He had known their guest for over 20 years, and could well appreciate his work.

Mr. T. L. King's endorsed Mr. Wolfe's remarks.

In reply, Mr. Sirdar Khan expressed gratitude for the gift of the walking stick and thanked the gathering for their presence. He made a stirring appeal to members of the Indian community, not already in the ranks of the Police Reserve, to join up and be ready to protect the Colony which offered them protection.

Mr. Sirdar Khan referred to the good feeling which always existed between members of the Police Reserve and the regular force. He sincerely hoped that the good feeling would continue.

and Japan "will be rendered still closer, thus securing permanent peace in the Far East.—Reuter's Special.

THRILLS FOR FANLING RACE-GOERS

NEW WATER JUMP FOR CHRISTMAS MEETING

NEXT TUESDAY'S BRILLIANT VARIETY PROGRAMME

PROMISE OF RECORD CROWD

(By "Ringtail")

It would seem that the organisers of the Christmas meeting of the Fanling Race and Hunt Club have gone out of their way to make it something of an unusual attraction.

Owners and jockeys have been given the fullest consideration and a programme drawn up which includes events for the Machine Gun Company, Hunters, Polo players, Ladies, "E" class ponies, and finally two open races.

THE PUNTER'S GUIDE

- 1st Race: White Stars seems to be the best nomination with Red Leaves, Cupid and Demure as possibles.
2nd Race: Hefty is a good proposition, but so is Melguards, and Black Maria and Malakit cannot be ignored.
3rd Race: Festival Eve the one big certainty of the meeting with Miss Farron on top. Watch Valley Hall and Wonderful Star for places.
4th Race: May be anybody. See next Tuesday's final selections.
5th Race: Christmas Belle, that luckless pony, looks good here.
6th Race: I think Amos and Lochryan will fight this out, with the odds just slightly in favour of the former in view of previous performances.

And the public? Well, they haven't been overlooked either. To add a thrill to the races, the water jump, which was previously placed on the back straight, has been shifted to a position immediately in front of the public stand. In addition it has been made a trifle higher and a little wider than in its original state, and as many of the ponies have already given it the "once over," it is safe to assume that it is not so easy as before.

The upshot of this means that ponies which are better jumpers but inferior speedsters will have improved chances of winning as against the fast runners and less efficient jumpers, which is somewhat of a reversal in the previous order of things.

RECORD CROWD PROMISED.

A record crowd is promised for next Tuesday, as bookings at the Hunters' Arms have been exceptional, and with the variety programme which is arranged, the holiday makers can anticipate a splendid time at Fanling.

The course is first rate, the recent rains having made all the difference in the world to its condition, and incidentally set aside many anxious doubts entertained by Mr. Hazleland, the Clerk of the Course. There should be some uncommonly good times returned.

The first race is for the Volunteers Machine Gun Corps, and in it will be seen practically the same field which competed in this event at the last meeting. The difference, however, is that on this occasion it is a handicap event, so that the ponies which were previously carrying 170 pounds, will be at the bottom weight of 146 pounds.

In the absence of Roosan and Mouche, this race appears like to see Cupid, Red Leaves, Demure and White Stars as chief contenders, and as the last named is a good little jumper and enjoys a small weight, I think in it punters will find the winner.

HEFTY?—MAYBE!

The Tally Ho Steeplechase, which is for bona fide hunters of the Fanling Hunt Club, is a catch-weight event, and because of this, and the tremendous weights which many of the runners will carry, selection is probably more difficult here than in any other event. Furthermore the nominees have not the slightest bit of cross-country form to show upon which one is to judge, but from personal knowledge, I favour Hefty as a likely winner, with Melguards, Black Maria and Malakit worthy of serious attention.

The Ladies Race is this time over a slightly longer course, and because of this, and other factors, I feel that Miss Farron, on her clever pony Festival Eve, will be unstoppable, and is a certain winner.

Miss Farron is an excellent rider and knows the Fanling course well, and when one remembers that Festival Eve always runs well under her, then one cannot entertain doubts as to its ultimate success.

LIKELY CONTENDERS.

Alexander Hall gave a fair performance at Macao recently, but with a lady rider without whip or spurs I do not fancy this pony's chances. Valley Hall did an excellent mile in 2 mins 4 secs. at Macao's last meeting and Wembley Stag is also in good condition, though not quite so fast as Valley Hall, which is being ridden by Miss Yvonne Shenton.

Wonderful Stag is being mounted by Miss Pamela Scott Harston, who enjoys an enviable reputation in the saddle and will doubtless get the utmost out of her mount.

The Polo Scurry is an unofficial race and is not one upon which I profess to know a great deal at the moment. We have no form by which to go either at Happy Valley or Fanling, but the names of Bay of Calamity, Picallili, Floughman and Patch stir a cord of memory. I fancy it is best to leave this event alone until I hear more about the entrants, and I hope by the time my final tips appear on Tuesday, to have some more reliable information concerning the participants.

CHRISTMAS BELLE.

Christmas Belle, which has been backed to win on every occasion it has faced the starter, and is still a maiden, will go to the post in the Christmas Plate race. Although this pony has not enjoyed many good breaks, I am still confident that over this particular distance it is capable of winning, especially if it is blessed with just a little bit of luck.

Estrellita will be running under a new owner, and should do well, whilst Until Then is still improving and is bound to be there or thereabouts.

AMOS OR LOCHRYAN.

Amos looks good for the Christmas Steeplechase, although I am not sure whether two miles is not just a little too far for it. However, when one bears in mind its performances over 1½ miles, one has to give support to this excellent little pony.

Strong challenges can be expected from Duke of Milan and Lochryan, the latter, it will be remembered, throwing his jockey at the last meeting. But the pony is running with 14 pounds less weight and is a strong runner as well as possessing a fine stride. Lochryan should do well here.

MEDWAY'S FIFTH DRAW

Destroyers Make Late Mamak Start

YESTERDAY'S HOCKEY

The Medway Mamak team registered their fifth draw in the tournament yesterday when they shared points with the Royal Signals, each side scoring twice. The Navy forward line was prominent throughout the game, which was played on the Marina ground, and they were unfortunate in not securing more than two goals. The Military defence offered a strong resistance, and broke up many promising movements.

The Destroyers played their second game in the tournament yesterday and drew with the R.A.M.C., each side netting twice.

BOXING DAY RACE TO MACAO

THE HANDICAPS AND PROSPECTS— —AND THE SAD STORY OF A VERY ENTHUSIASTIC YACHTSMAN!

(By "Chau Kung")

The ninth annual run to Macao, since its revival in 1924, brought about by the enthusiasm of Mr. Geo. Hulton Potts, who presented the Challenge Cup for the race—will start at 7.30 a.m. on Boxing Day from Murray Pier. It seems likely that a record number of boats will start and the difficulty in "finding the winner" will be increased thereby for one never can tell what may happen in such a race.

It memory serves correctly I believe on one occasion the crew of one competing yacht bathed one morning to the South of Cheung Chau and to the North of the Island on the next—the boats which had gone North of Lan Tau arriving home about 40 hours ahead.

SPECIAL PRIZE.

Much depends on the weather, with winds at force 3 and under all yachts have a reasonable chance but 1 a heavier weight of wind the battle is with the big ones. The Committee seem to recognise this fact and I understand that they are offering a special prize for boats of 22 ft. water line length and under; for the boats of the shorter sailing length cannot develop the speed to compete with their longer sisters who may well travel, when on a reach, at 8 knots or more, whilst they are doing extremely well if they better 5½.

When it comes to the individual craft the following seems to be the best chance of being in the first three: "Azuma" (Mr. Lambert "Curlew" (Mr. Monsey), "Chorus" (Mr. Goulbourn), "Irene" (Mr. Berg), "La Cigale" (Mr. Croucher), "Monsoon" (Mr. Grievie), "Norseman" (Mr. Nicholson), "Queen Bee" (Dr. Herklotz), "Sailark V" (Mr. Cook), "U. & I." (Comdr. Cowland, R.N.), "U. & I." (Mr. Rouse), and "Wanderer" (Mr. Baker). This list contains the five boats which have won previously but perhaps the best record to date is that of "U. & I." with two firsts, two seconds, two thirds and two sixths places in eight races. "La Cigale" and "Tay II" have both won twice but their record for the other races is not quite so good; "Norseman" and "Wanderer" are the other winners.

"Monsoon" put up an excellent race last year when sailed by Mr. Chambers of Jardines and is likely to do well this year for she now has a splendidly fitting suit of sails and is in the capable hands of Messrs. Grievie and Duley of the same firm. "Curlew" which is practically a sister ship also has a good record; I fear however their chances will not be too rosy if we have high winds but in such a case they will come near to the "22ft and under" prize.

ROUND ISLAND RACE.

The race round Hongkong Island (to "port") on Sunday last made a good preliminary canter for next Monday's event and "Azuma" gave a great display of her windward capabilities between Crocodile Island and D'Agulhar Point. There was an exhilarating tussle between "Wanderer" and "U. & I." which resulted in the former crossing the line only half a second ahead, falling thereby to save her time. "Typhoon" and "Curlew" were at it "nip and tuck" all the way from Sulphur Channel to Tatching Rock but "Monsoon" left them both when she came into her own in the bigger sea between Wong Ma Kok and D'Agulhar, where "Luana" felt the effects of being under canvas in the lighter wind. "Chorus" and "Tay II" both thought it to be an unequal struggle when off Collins Light and switched on their engines to get home in time for dinner; one skipper remarking "I don't mind having tiffin at sea but I do like to be home for dinner." Believe me it is "a hard life," as a competitor in a previous Macao race said amongst other things when having left his bed on the Peak rather late, gulped a cup of coffee, snatched his grub and gear, dashed for the seven o'clock tram and on tumbling into the motor boat, the box holding hard boiled eggs opened up on falling to the floor of the launch, and gave forth golf balls to his astonished gaze whilst he could only murmur, "well, they rattled when a motor boat—thing."

MACAO HANDICAPS.

Brother! it is indeed a hard life and here are some of the Handicaps

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

A new mode in eyebrows has been introduced by Marlene Dietrich. In "Blonde Venus," her latest picture, which comes to the King's Theatre tomorrow, she again displays the slanting, oriental, eyebrow make-up that she wore in "Shanghai Express." Though originally she intended it only for the one picture, her own liking for the innovation was so great that she decided to retain it. In "Blonde Venus" she is cast as the wife of an alien scientist, whose only chance for life is in a visit to an expert abroad. To raise the money, she goes to work in a night club. There she attracts the attention of a wealthy young politician. He falls in love with her, and provides her with the money necessary to see her husband abroad. Meanwhile, she discovers that she loves him, and when the husband, cured, returns and discovers the situation, she faces a decision which leads to a dramatic climax. Gary Grant, of the new crop of young male players, plays the role of the lover, with Herbert Marshall, well-known English star of the dramatic stage, as the husband.

John Gilbert in "Downstairs."

John Gilbert turns author and villain at the same time in "Downstairs," his latest starring picture playing at the Queen's Theatre from tomorrow. As an author he has furnished one of the strangest and most gripping plots the screen has seen in some time. As an actor he gives the screen a debonair, unscrupulous villain who makes up in audacity what he lacks in morals. The star upset all precedent, abandoning romantic roles to play this part, a cold-blooded characterization which might have been written for a Max Baer. Gilbert directed the Austrian screen masterpiece in "Downstairs." There is a terrific dramatic climax in which a vengeful husband wreaks a blood-curdling revenge. There are light comedy moments when the villain gaily hoodwinks royalty and servants alike. There are tense dramatic moments, when he escapes detection by sheer audacity. Paul Lukas as the vengeful butler plotting a terrible retribution for the man who has ruined his home is superb. Virginia Bruce offers a distinguished portrayal of the lady's maid who falls a victim to the villain's wiles. And excellent work is done by Hedda Hopper, Reginald Owen, Olga Baclanova, Bodil Rosing, Otto Hoffman, Lucien Littlefield and Marion Mering.

"Dance Team."

The popularity of these lovable "Bad Girl" stars, Janice Dunn and Sally Eilers is again proved in their latest picture, "Dance Team" at the King's Theatre. In the roles of two penniless but infinitely ambitious dancers who yearn for fame and fortune at the Vernon Castle variety and who after many hardships and struggles achieve the much coveted success, only to see it again slip through their fingers, their performances are simply superlative. And likewise the perfect manner of the members of the large supporting cast, which includes, Minna Gombell, who also played with Dunn and Miss Eilers in "Bad Girl," Ralph Morgan, Harry Bercford, Edward Grondall, Morris Lane, Charles Williams and Claire Maynard.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., who is now appearing at the Queen's Theatre in "Chances," the first National romance of the World War, which is his initial starring vehicle, had a dressing room which is a modern marvel. The makers of it did what Doug might call a "snappy job." It is ten feet square, has a gabled roof, swinging doors and leaded windows of stained glass. It is mounted on large casters and can be easily moved from stage to the studio over paved courts. The movable dressing room was made primarily for efficiency. If young Doug has to change costumes it can be done with lightning speed. When he has time between scenes he can rest or read. "Chances" is an adaptation of the brilliant novel of A. Hamilton Gibbs. It concerns two

OBITUARY.

DEATH OF OLD RESIDENT OF THE COLONY

We regret to have to report the death, which occurred yesterday afternoon at the War Memorial young English soldiers, brothers, who both love the same girl. The background is terrific in its reality—picturing the scenes on the Western Front during the World War.

A new Mary Brian appears in "Homestead" Universal's startling drama which is now playing at the Central Theatre. In this picture, the charming Mary abandons the "sweet girl" roles with which she has been identified for years and plays the part of taxi-dancer full of fire and animation. Other important roles in the film story are played by Lee Carroll, Noah Berry and Russell Glennon.

Hospital, of Mrs. David Harvey, the widow of the late Mr. David Harvey, a well-known resident of the Colony who died a few years ago. The deceased lady had been ailing for a long time, being a sufferer from pernicious anaemia, and was 56 years of age at the time of her death.

The late Mrs. Harvey had resided in the Colony during the past 37 years, and was popular with a large circle of friends. She actively associated herself with the Union Church in Kowloon, and was a member of that institution's Ladies Guild. She leaves one son, Mr. David Harvey, of Messrs. Dodwell and Company, to whom much sympathy will be extended in his bereavement.

The funeral will take place this afternoon, passing the Monument at 5 p.m.

MR. SUN FO'S SURPRISE

RUMOURS OF "SPLIT" DENIED

Nanking, Dec. 23.
Mr. Sun Fo, recently appointed President of the Legislative Yuan, sprang a surprise to-day when he did not, contrary to widely published reports, actually assume his new post.

He suddenly changed his plans and went to Shanghai, postponing assumption of office until January 1. Rumours of a split are denied. An early report declared that Mr. Sun Fo had assumed office at a ceremony at 10 a.m. at the National Government Headquarters, with Mr. Lin Sen, Chairman of the Government presiding. He was expected to submit the list of members of the Legislative Yuan to the Central Political Council for approval in the afternoon.

Mr. Sun Fo's sudden departure occasioned considerable surprise in political circles. In spite of the fact that General Chiang Kai-shek, General Yu Yu-jen, Dr. Lo Wen-kan and other prominent officials proceeded to Hainan to urge him to remain, Mr. Sun Fo remained firm in his decision to quit the capital and return to Shanghai.

It is understood that the National Government has telegraphed to Mr. T. V. Soong and Mr. Chu Kih-hua, who are at present in Shanghai, instructing them to interview Mr. Sun Fo and persuade him to return to Nanking.

It is reported that the incident arose over the appointment of new members of the Legislative Yuan. The matter is, however, regarded as unimportant and the incident is expected to be amicably settled shortly, although Mr. Sun Fo's return to Nanking must be postponed till early January.

Official circles deny rumours that a rift has occurred between Mr.

Sun Fo and the Government. The leaders explain that Mr. Sun Fo's presence at Shanghai this morning when he was being inducted as President of the Legislative Yuan at Nanking was due to the fact that arrangements were not completed.

Possible Posts.

Dr. C. C. Wu, General Heung Shao-hung and General Chang Hui-chang have also arrived in Shanghai. Chinese reports state that Dr. Wu is likely to be appointed Minister of Justice and concurrently Chairman of the Special Foreign Relations Committee.

As regards the probable changes in the personnel of the Government, the conviction is growing that General Heung Shao-hung, the Minister of Home Affairs, will replace General Lu Ti-ling as Governor of Chekiang province as the latter is in very bad health, while Shih Ying, the present Mayor of Nanking, will become the Home Minister to succeed General Huang. The Central Political Council which is meeting to-day, will decide whether the Ministry of Justice should be amalgamated with the Judicial Yuan as proposed at the C. E. C. Conference.

It is reliably learned that either Dr. Alfred So or Mr. Frank Lee will be appointed Minister to Washington to succeed Dr. W. W. Yen who will be transferred to the Ambassadorship at Moscow. Dr. H. H. Kung, former Minister of Industries, who is at present in the United States as a Special Commissioner of the National Government, is stated to be the Minister to Rome.

Shao Yuan-chung, Acting President of the Legislative Yuan, has been appointed Minister of Education to take the place of Gong Wen-chao who declined the appointment.—Reuter.

His Excellency the Governor has appointed Mr. J. G. George Charlton to be an Assistant Government Marine Surveyor (Engineer Surveyor), Harbour Department.

SPENCER JONES

APPOINTED TO BE NEXT ASTRONOMER ROYAL

London, Dec. 23.

The King has sanctioned the appointment of Mr. Spencer Jones as astronomer at the Cape of Good Hope observatory, to be Astronomer Royal at the Royal Observatory, Greenwich, in succession to Sir Frank Dyson who will retire from public service on February 23. Sir Frank Dyson has been Astronomer Royal since 1910.

His successor has done considerable work in co-operation with the Zion Observatory, Johannesburg, on the new star Nova Pictoris. Last year, as Chairman of the International Committee for the observation of the minor planet Eros, he directed world-wide research when Eros was at its minimum distance from the earth, most of the work being done at Cape Town.—British Wireless.

The numerous friends of Lady Clara Ho Tung will be sorry to hear that she is confined to bed, following an attack of malaria and subsequent complications. Latest reports, however, show that her condition is improving, and it is now hoped that she will make a speedy recovery to her usual health.

Suffering from internal injuries sustained when a safe fell on top of him, Ip Choh, aged 65, of 139, Des Voeux Road Central, was taken to the Government Civil Hospital yesterday. Together with others the man was carrying the safe down the stairs when he slipped.
